Interpreting your score:

There are two ways to interpret your score. The first is your cumulative score, which gives you an indication of your overall sense of health, fulfillment, and happiness in life:

- 81-100: I am generally healthy and happy in my life. Feedback in specific areas might be useful.
- 65-80: My life is okay, but not always what I would like it to be. I could use some direction in making my life healthier.
- 50-65: My life is not going in a direction I would like it to go. I need guidance in learning how to have greater health and wellness.
- Less than 50: My life is unhealthy and needs to change now. (Don't give up – this is a great opportunity for growth!)

The second way to interpret your score has to do with the individual areas which are covered in the survey. Research has shown that the twenty areas addressed in the questions are specific indicators which contribute to one's overall sense of wellness. So, for example, if a score was less than 4 on a particular question, it shows room for improvement in that specific area. The lower the score, the greater the opportunity for growth.
